Providence Federal Credit Union Donates Tubs of Art and Craft Supplies to the Morrison Child & Family Services

Portland, OR, January 21, 2010: Holidays was a time for giving and Providence Federal Credit Union employees donated three large tubs of art and craft supplies to the Morrison Child & Family Services located in Portland, Oregon in December. The Morrison Child & Family Services provide a full-range of mental health, substance abuse, juvenile justice, and prevention services. Their programs also include residential, day treatment, outpatient counseling, parent education, home and school-based programs as well as foster care. They have 18 local clinics.

"We wanted to create an art and activity boxes that would be a fun way to provide useful activities for the children's waiting rooms at all of their locations," said Charles Moore, Providence Federal Credit Union Members Service Representative who selected the non-profit organization and coordinated the art supply drive. "It was important to give them something they can enjoy year-round. Our goal was to have our gift last beyond the season and provide them hours of enrichments to the many children they serve."

"Our employees had a lot of fun contributing to our art and craft tubs," said Denise Wheeland, Providence Federal Credit Union's Vice President of Operations. "They all pitched in, and as you can see, there are all kinds of tools imaginable: crayons, colored pencils, all types of glues, colored markers, colored paper, paints, yarns, colored tissues, brushes, and so forth to help create, decorate and build. We have caring employees, and we are glad that they gave us an opportunity to help."
